

Using Reflectors and Diffusers for Macro Photography

Text and photography copyright © Jim Erhardt. All rights reserved.

In order to eliminate the light on the background, I have positioned a piece of cardboard between the reflector and the background. I started off by simply leaning the cardboard against a tripod leg, and then adjusted the position of the reflector so that the subject was still illuminated but the cardboard blocked any light from falling on the background.

Proceed to Photo 13